A letter of thanks

Dear Editor,

Three years ago an immense tragedy hit my state in the form of Hurricane Katrina.

The people of the State Mississippi continue to be grateful for the help that poured into our state from all directions, including help from way up north, from the State of Vermont.

We had a lot of help from one individual in particular from Vermont.

I met Air Force Reserve Col. Brian Dubie on an airport ramp in Gulfport, Mississippi. He was here representing the commanding general of the U.S. Air Force, and he was here to put the assets of the Air Force to work for us. I was pretty surprised when I learned that he is also your state's second-in-command.

I would like to thank the people of Vermont for your heroic volunteer efforts, for the relief supplies you sent down by the truckload, and for lending your lieutenant governor, Brian Dubie, to the U.S. Air Force Reserve and to the people of Mississippi.

Sincerely,

Haley Barbour
Governor, State of Mississippi
